Other Information: The Colorado State Forest is located approximately 75 miles west of Fort Collins. It is a 71,000 acre forest ranging in elevation from 8,000 to 13,000 feet. The Colorado State Forest Service is under contract with the State Land Board to manage the forest resources on the Colorado State Forest. Further information may be found at the Colorado State Forest Website: <http://csfs.colostate.edu/stateforest.htm>

The Colorado State Forest Service offers seasonal employees a wide range of forest management opportunities. Seasonal employees will be constantly challenged to improve their field forestry skills, including the use of maps, compasses, clinometers and increment borers. In addition, employees will be exposed to various technological applications, including GPS, GIS and digital mapping. Work days are long and very demanding: work is predominately in the field, often in high-elevation locations with difficult terrain and adverse weather conditions. Seasonal employees will have opportunities to lead, educate, and take part in an integrated forest management program.

Please send cover letter of application, resume and at least three references (professional references preferred) to:

Colorado State Forest Service
